TO BUILD CHURCH.—About $400 has been raised by subscription towards building a Christian church on Shelby Goodpaster farm at the mouth of Sale's Well Branch where a church once stood. Mr. Goodpaster has donated a half acre of land for the purpose on a beautiful location. Work will commence when about $1,000 is secured.

EQUITABLE LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY.—And there stands Kentucky's first in war, first in peace, first in the list of States in business for the Equitable year of 1905. Of fifty leading agents in United States and Canada for July fifteen were Kentuckians. There is nothing the matter with Kentucky or the Equitable. S. M. PARCELL, Agt.

THE PLEASANT VALLEY METHODIST.—The protracted meeting at Pleasant Valley Church (Sec's school house), which began Sunday night, Aug. 7, closed Monday night, Aug. 21. Elders B. H. Ross and T. W. Harrison conducted the meeting. The attendance was large and interest strong. There were 46 additions to the church during the meeting.

BIG SCHOOL FUND.—According to the school census Bath county has 4,664 children of school age, which is a larger number than Montgomery (3,373), Nicholas (2,365), Bourbon (3,869) or many of the larger and wealthier counties. Bath county has 5,362. Bath gets $15,257 15 out of the school fund, at $3.25 per capita. The mountainous sections are far more prolific of children than the bluegrass section.

TOBACCO MEETING ATTRACTIVE.—There was a large crowd of tobacco growers at the meeting at Sharpsburg Saturday afternoon, H. B. Kinnaird, of Mt. Sterling, addressed the meeting. Over $2,000 worth of stock out of $7,500 appropriated to Bath county was subscribed in old of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co.

Other counties the subscriptions are being increased, but it seems very doubtful that the sum said to be necessary to perfect the organization will be raised.

JOHN LEWIS VICE DEAD.—After a long illness John Lewis Vice, of near Forge Hill, died last Thursday. He weighed over two hundred pounds before he became ill and wasted away until he would not have weighed over seventy five pounds. He was buried at Old Virginia Friday. Deceased was aged about 60 years. He died on the forty-second anniversary of his enlistment in the Federal army during the Civil War. While in the army he contracted a disease of the eyes which finally destroyed his eyesight. He secured a pension of $72 per month and back pay amounting to several thousand dollars. His pension was recently increased to $100 per month. He lived on a farm, which he hired operated. He leaves a widow and six children, all the latter being under sixteen years of age. His last wife was a daughter of Wm. Knox, deceased.

REPUBLICAN COMMITTEE TO MEET AGAIN.—The Bath County Republican Committee will meet Thursday and adjourned until September 5, when it will meet again and determine the question of nominating candidates for the county offices and Representative.

Although local political developments are awaited, it is generally believed that a ticket will be put in the field. Gossip has made up a slate as follows: James P. Colliver, of near Sherburne, for County Judge; Henry T. Hopkins, of Owingsville, for Sheriff, and Wm. C. Tipton, of Wyoming, for Deputy; Chas. Crain, of Salt Lick, for County Clerk, with Rufus Knight, of Sharpsburg, for Deputy; John Thacker, of Owingsville, for Jailor; Omar Barber, of Wyoming, for County Attorney; Mrs. Bettie Williams, of Reynoldsville, for School Superintendent.

The Democratic primary comes off next Saturday. If that races ends satisfactorily to the supporters of both candidates—and it is that each candidate has been treated fairly and the vote honestly counted as cast—it may put a different complexion on affairs. Everybody understands that Bath county is normally strongly Democratic, and the opposition can have no reasonable hope of carrying the county in the face of Democratic harmony. But there are whispers of disaffection over the result of the Democratic primary when the county ticket was nominated last year. Whether this will continue and be effective remains to be demonstrated.

OBITUARY.—On Wednesday, Aug. 16, the Death Angel visited the home of Davis Sorrell and wife and enfolded in its icy clasp one of earth's fairest blossoms, one too pure and beautiful to be left here. Little Nina Dee Sorrell was born Feb. 7, 1898, and died Aug. 16, 1905; buried in Longview Cemetery, Bath Co., Aug. 17, where a large concourse of sorrowing friends and relations followed her to her last resting place. She had been afflicted from infancy with heart disease, which caused her death. All that loving hands could do was done, but to no avail. God saw fit to call her home; one more was needed. Death, the reaper, the pall, are familiar to all, yet none the less bitter, none the less keen. We know it is hard, dear parents, but think not of her as dead; your darling is not dead, but sleepeth, and let her words comfort you: "Mamma, if I die I'll live again." So prepare to meet her; little hands are beckoning you on. Her spirit has gone to God, who gave it, and when you pass over the dark river her bright little face will be the first to greet you. "For of such is the kingdom of Heaven." They have the sympathy of a host of friends in their sad bereavement. A FRIEND.

JOHN B. YOUNG'S DEATH.—On last Thursday John B. Young, cash was left by his cousin John B. McKinnan to look after his farm while the latter was staying at Amyx's Springs for the benefit of his health, being very sick. A. W. Bascom, his brother in law, went with a car ringe to bring him to his house and started with him, but Mr. Young expired on the way. Mr. Young in his earlier years was a very robust man, but his health broke down some years ago, though he had been better the past spring than for a long time.

The funeral was held at A. W. Bascom's home Friday afternoon, the interment being made at the Owingsville Cemetery. The pall bearers were Geo. T. Young, Tom Fassett, Dick Burbridge, Dee Shrout, Jas Dewan, James Y. Bascom, Eugene Bonther and Dudley Warner.

John B. Young was a son of Jas. Young and wife, and a grandson of Col. Thomas J. Young. His father has been dead many years, and his mother died about three years ago. He was born Dec. 26, 1856, and was reared in the Flat Creek neighborhood. He was a generous man, warmly liked by his associates, and leaves many relatives and friends to mourn his decease. Mrs. A. V. Bascom, Mrs. D. D. Young, of near town; Mrs. Het tie Jones, of Texas, and Mrs. Dee Berry, near Sharpsburg, are sisters and brother of deceased.

ESCAPE LOOKS LIKE IN JAIL.—On last Friday morning at about 7 o'clock George Keller, aged 17 years, hailing from Lee county, was proshieving pedestrianism along past the home of Elijah Greene on J. M. Bigstaff's farm near Springfield Church. George was walking from necessity and not from choice, and while he saw he could easily outpress one of Grover horses into service he did so and ambled gaily through the country, avoiding publicity and traveled roads as much as possible. George was not particularly modest, but he despised ostentation under the circumstances. Mr. Grover missed the animal and tracked it and rider to Sharpsburg, where Constable Bob Humphrey took up the trail and followed it to near Moorefield. George while boarding at a farm house when Humphrey pinched him. George had sold the horse for $110 and had a check for the money. He said his intention was to cash the check and hike out to Arizona on the hunt of his father, who had deserted his mother in Lee county and eloped with his aunt. George regretted being caught very much and said the next time he would make it a point to steal a buggy too, for horseback riding was not entirely to his taste, especially when he had no saddle and the weather was hot.

George was brought before Squire S. T. Howard, who bonded him for $500 until the grand jury investigates his case. Constable Humphrey brought George here Saturday and left him to board and lodge with Jailer Jones.

THE CO-OPERATIVE MEETING.—The co-operative meeting of the congregations of the Christian churches of Bath county held its sessions in the Christian church at Owingsville Saturday and Sunday. On Sunday at 11 a. m. a crowded house was addressed by J. J. Taylor, of Connersville, Ind., his subject being the "Fourfold Gospel of Jesus Christ," which was strong, convincing and instructive. B. F. Parker presided at the Lord's table. After the communion was dismissed a basket dinner was served in the school-house yard, and the hospitality dispensed has not been excelled by any in the populous days of Bath county basket dinners. The afternoon session convened at 2 o'clock, and after the reports from the various churches the meeting was addressed by T. W. Harrison, whose subject was "Golden Principles," which was followed by B. H. Ross on "Rumor Religion, Which?" The last speech was made by B. F. Parker, who spoke on "The Work of the Pioneers." The speeches were strong and pointed out our weaknesses, with strong exhortations to a better citizenship and service in the Lord's Kingdom. J. J. Taylor addressed a good audience at night on "The Church that Jesus Built." Services will be held each night at 7:30 o'clock for the next two weeks, and a cordial invitation is extended to all to be present at each meeting.

STATE FAIR CATALOGUE.—The catalogues for the big Kentucky State Fair to be held at Lexington Sept. 18 23 was issued last Friday. It is the handsomest and most complete catalogue ever issued for any State Fair in the country. Its typographical appearance is unexcelled and its arrangement is of such kind as to secure the easiest and most convenient access and to enable the securing of the information desired with the least possible trouble.

Nearly $25,000 in premiums is offered for the fair. The classifications cover beef cattle, dairy cattle, horses of all kinds, mules and jack stock, swine, sheep, poultry and pigeons, vegetables and melons, field seeds and grain, tobacco, horticulture, plants and flowers, woman's work, table luxuries, farm implements, machinery, mines and mineral products. The varieties of these different classifications separate exhibits that will be in themselves a liberal education.

A feature of the fair will be the magnificent Duss band of forty odd pieces, probably conceded to be the greatest band in America today. The Will S. Heck World's Fair Pike Co. will offer the novelty amusement features connected with the fair. They will include a Wild West show and a splendid animal show among other attractions. Reduced rates of one fare plus 25 cents for the round trip have been secured on all railroads from all points in Kentucky. There is every prospect of a record breaking attendance, and there seems good reason to believe that this year's fair will be such a success as to insure its permanence along larger lines than heretofore.

NEW VERSES BY JOYCE.—Colonel John A Joyce sent the following to his friend James K. Jackson, of Olympia.

THE LITTLE COPPER BUTTON.

Dedicated to the Grand Army of the Republic.

The little copper button
That he wears upon his breast
Proclaims him to be honest
A peer among the rest
Of men, who battle bravely
For land and over sea
For equal rights and honor
And the Flag that made us free.

The litter copper button
Grand Army men can wear
Is more than crown or scepter
Respected every where,
For those who justly own it
Are soldiers superfine
And found their crown of glory
On the fighting, firing line.

The little copper button
That gleams upon his breast—
An emblem of the Union
And every loyal vest,
That tells of deeds of daring
Add days of trial gone
When he saw he could easily outpress one of Grover horses into
And war of "Sixty One."

The little copper button
Brings back to you and me
The glory of this nation
From the mountains to the sea.
Our camp fires in the valley
Our charging on the plain
Where loyal dead and dying
Were heaped among the slain.

The little copper button
That greets the passing throng
Demands that recognition
That the brave, the true and strong
Deserved and did unanimous
While resisting shot and shell
As bulwarks of the Union
Shattered in that burning hell.

The little copper button
Hides many an ache and scar.
Contracted for the people
On bloody fields of war.
And though the hearts behind it
Beat painful, proud and slow
They can't forget the glory
Of their deeds of long ago.

The little copper button
If it could think and talk
Of Donaldson and Shiloh
Where ghostly comrades stalk
Could tell of bayonet's charges
And officers who led
The bleeding Boste of Freedom
To the realms of the dead.

The little copper button
Has honor for its guide
And charity for valor
Where foemen side by side
Fought grandly for their sections
To punctuate their cause
Till Freedom proudly triumphed
For equal human laws.

The little copper button
At Gettysburg might tell.
How bloody waves of Blue and Gray
Rolled o'er that billowy hell,
From Pickett's charge to Round Top
When Longstreet, Meade and Lee
Were battling madly meteor
Over ridge and rock and tree.

The little copper button
At Appomattox true
Might narrate two great heroes
Brave Grant and gallant Lee
And how the war was ended
By warriors bold and true
Who merged at last their conflict
In the Flag of Union blue.

The little copper button
Displays in bronze relief
The suffering of mankind
The silent tears of grief—
For mother, wife or daughter
Who have long since passed away
And left the broken soldier
To neglect and to decay.

The little copper button
Appeals to men of might,
To legislate for valor
For justice, love and right,
Well knowing that our banner
So brilliant, bright and true
Was only kept a-flying
By the boys who wore the blue.

The little copper button
In the street and home and hall
Commands the loyal homage
Of hatred one and all,
And where it glints and glistens
In crowds or every kind
Is lionized and remembered
As a badge of lofty mind.

The little copper button
May grace a tattered blouse
To tell of nameless sorrows
And pilgrimed, broken vows,
But, he who dares to wear it
Should be brave and kind and true
And keep his honor shining
Like the stars in yonder blue.

The little copper button
Each comrade knows full well
And who is beset by danger
Would wade through fires of hell
To save a fellow soldier
In his deepest hour of need
And rush to his assistance
With flashing, lightning speed.

The little copper button
Will hail a soldier and salute—
The Loyal legion button—
Brave men of high repute,
And though the private soldier
An officer might scan
He knew no flying bullets
Reserved rank or man.

The little copper button
Maintained the Nation's life—
A shield against all foremen
In every fearful strife,
And stars in deer "Old Glory"
Shine brighter and more true
Because baptized in battle
By the blood of the Boys in Blue.

The little copper button
Will tell to young and old
That love for home and country
Is greater far than gold,
That every human progress
Over valley, stream and hill
Has ever been accomplished
By bullets, blade and blood.

The little copper button
In midnight hours of ease
Will glorify each comrade
When nothing else is there,
And even in dreaming slumber
His vanished matter shall call
To join them in their bivouac
Where God takes care of all.

The little copper button
Will soon be out of sight
And lost to love and country
Be wrapped in gray-yard night.
Yet humanity with better claim
Shall never cease to name
The heroes of this Nation
Adown the aisles of fame.

The little copper button
In other years shall be
An emblem of perfection
To the men who would be free
And while our grand old Union
Remains to tell the tale
The record of the soldier
Shall be blown on every gale.
And Lincoln, Grant and Sherman
With Sheridan and Meade
Shall shine in mounts of glory
Bestrido heroic steed—
Where Farragut and Porter—
Grand sailors of the sea
Shall all clasp hands as comrades
For the war that made us free!

KENTUCKY.

Kentucky, O Kentucky,
I love your bluegrass ways,
Your girls of matchless beauty,
And your glorious, sunny days,
Where flowers are ever blooming,
And Bourbon juices flow,
Reminding one of childhood
And the sweets of long ago.

Kentucky, O Kentucky,
Wherever I may stray,
I hold in grand devotion
Your sons of Blue and Grey.
And though the world rebukes me
On land or stormy sea,
I find sweet consolation
In contemplating thee.

Kentucky, O Kentucky,
No other land or clime
Can banish thy remembrance,
And all the years to come
That I passed among thy bowers
With glorious girls and boys—
In concentrated pleasure
And illimitable joys.

Kentucky, O Kentucky,
In lane, or street or Fair,
You shine among the millions
And are always "getting there,"
Heroic in your manner,
Shall be known in land and art,
A commonwealth of glory,
With a royal hand and heart.

Kentucky, O Kentucky,
When I draw my latest breath,
I only crave the pleasure
To die on thee in death.
And if no other heaven
Shall ever shine for me,
I'll be content forever
If my dust is mixed with thee!

EPISODE IN A TUNNEL.

Maiden seated in the train,
Pocket full of money;
Down beside her sits a man—
Maiden thinks he's funny.

Quickly speeds the train along.
In a tunnel enters;
Maiden's thought most anxiously
On her pocket centers.

Quietly her little hand,
Toward the money stealing,
Finds a hand already there,
Robbery revealing.

Fiercely clutches she the hand,
On hysterics verging,
Waiting till the train shall be
From the dark emerging.

Into sunlight now at last
Train shoots like a rocket;
Maiden finds she has her hand
In the stranger's pocket.

A ROSE OF NORMANDY

By WILLIAM R. A. WILSON

CHAPTER VII.—CONTINUED.

A late hare she had been playing lay on a neighboring couch. Her hands, clasped above her head, grasped firmly the carved woodwork of the chair, while her feet were hidden by the silken pillows strewn about the floor. Her whole attitude was that of defiance, dreamy restfulness. Her eyes wandered listlessly over the trim lawns and the broad terraces by flights of steps, over the statues, to the mere glimpses of which could be caught here and there amid the varying greens of the shrubbery. Gazing at the jets of water rising out of marble basins, the precisely arranged flowers and orange trees lining the walks, she was but faintly conscious of their beauties, for her eyes followed her thoughts on past the park to the river-edge where the water-lilies grew in cold profusion under the shadows of the tree-enshrouded boys. Here they rested for a moment, then on and on to the home she had left with by the great city with its noisy teeming life, less than three leagues away from this retired spot where all was quietude, order and repose.

At length that strange consciousness that one was looked at by one's fancied its influence over her thoughts, and she involuntarily withdrew her gaze from the window. She turned her head and beheld the mademoiselle standing in the doorway, watching her with a strange expression of mingled respect and affection; respect, because, reared as she had been in the atmosphere of the court reeking with that social atmosphere that pervaded everything, she could especially appreciate the beauties of a feminine nature fairly and unadulterated; affection, because in the young companion she saw bits of her own self when at her age; a certain spirit unconsciously to her, a playful humor at times deliciously feminine, yet a nature capable of responding to the sterner duties of life. Then, too, with all her greatness and wealth, mademoiselle's life had been essentially a lonely, unrefined one, care, hence in the companionship of this warm, affectionate young nature, the ever-living divine maternal element within her was satisfied by having something to love.

"Ah! ma mignonne," she exclaimed, as soon as their eyes met, "you have been so absent-minded since you entered. Where were your thoughts? Not with your father, I hope, for I dreamed when I entered," she cried, clapping her hands and laughing gayly.

Renee's blushes only added to her merriment. "True, it was of him I thought—but she ended with a sudden spirit, "but my thoughts were rather those of anxiety than those you imagined. I feared lest in the duel that will be fought one more victim would be added to the list of the Comte de Miron's treacheries."

While speaking thus, the sound of an approaching horse was heard galloping along the avenue from the main road. A few moments later it stopped at the front of the house and presently a servant appeared. A messenger from the Baron de Salle," he said.

"Admit him here," replied mademoiselle. "As for you, Renee, you may remain."

Renee withdrew toward the window and mademoiselle settled herself to receive the man, when the door was thrown open and Tonti stood before her. Bowing low with an easy grace, he said:

"The Sieur de la Salle sends by me his highest respect and salutation, together with this note," and he handed a small missive to mademoiselle, then stepped back a pace while she read it.

Renee was deeply buried behind a large book beside the window. She heard and took no heed, but at his first sound of his voice her heart seemed to stand still and the printed words, seen as in a blurred mass before her eyes. She recognized the sound.

Tonti's gaze wandered about the luxurious furnishings of the apartment. Suddenly he started as his eyes fell in ready recognition upon Renee, and in his ear fell from his grasp, while the muttered exclamation "My Rose of Normandy!" escaped him.

Mademoiselle, whose attention had been fixed upon her note, finished reading at this juncture and looked up.

"Tell the Sieur de la Salle I shall be most happy to grant his request, and that he may come to-morrow. When does he sail for those northern shores and cruel savages the Jesuit fathers write so much about?"

"Some two weeks hence; from La Rochelle; by the ship 'Saint Honore.'" was the reply, made precise and without polite embellishment by the agitated state of Tonti's mind.

"And you, Capt. de Tonti, I understand from the Prince de Conti that you accompany the Sieur de la Salle as lieutenant or partner in his enterprise. I wish you both success; because there is not so intrepid an explorer to be found as the Sieur de la Salle, and because you, as a gallant and worthy soldier, deserve it. Kindly carry my message to your friend, and accept my thanks in advance for doing it;" and thus speaking in her stateliest manner, mademoiselle extended her hand, and Tonti, bending low to kiss it, bowed deferentially and was gone.

Hardly had the door closed and mademoiselle had scarcely time to lay aside her dignity when Renee sprang up, sad, tossing her book high in air, came dashing across the room and, stopping before her astonished companion, gave one final pirouette and threw herself into her arms, crying:

"Tis he! 'Tis he!"

"He? Whom?" asked mademoiselle, puzzled at her words.

"The man of yesterday; the one you termed the stranger knight but a few moments ago."

"Ah!" exclaimed mademoiselle, smiling, "Henri de Tonti. The wind has blown from that quarter, does it?"

A flushed face met hers in earnest repudiation of all that her tones indicated.

"How foolish, ma chere Louise! Cannot I but feel grateful for his manly assistance without loving him?" Then with a bad effort to appear indifferent she continued:

"Would it be grateful in me not to feel anxious for him in his coming meeting with the Comte de Miron, knowing the Comte as I do? Did you not praise him yourself as a gallant soldier? Is it right to allow such to fall beneath a treacherous blow?"

"True," replied mademoiselle musingly, "he is a protege of the Prince de Conti, and has rendered marvellous services to the king in his Sicilian campaign, all of which Louis has forgotten and now allows him to go to die in the wilderness," she then related the history of Tonti's iron hand and other of his gallant deeds she had heard. Renee listened eagerly, her eyes sparkling and her breath coming and going in short, quick gasps. Mademoiselle noticed this and stopped. "I must tell you no more, mon Dieu! or I shall but add fuel to the flames this handsome Italian soldier has already lighted. Come, mon bijou, do not break your heart over him. He is about to sail, as you heard him say, with my friend the Sieur de la Salle, the great explorer, to New France, to be lost in some savage wild, or settle down, marry some Indian woman (they call them squaws, I believe), and disappear from our sight. However, to please you and for one so good as you, I am at your service to carry out any plan you may suggest to save our sex-left knight, and to-morrow when you completely your own old that you give him a small place my most trusted servant and what I possess at your service. Now I must see about the quarters for the new English horse that arrives to-morrow. Adieu, ma cherie!" and kissing her in a half-motherly, half-sisterly fashion, she left the room.

Renee, left alone, seated herself beside the open window, and burying her head in her arms she strove to think of some plan to save the man who but a few moments before stood in the same room with her. The relaxation from her previous excitement was soothing, and the warm afternoon breeze caused a drowsy feeling to creep over her. Gradually her mind ceased planning, and with her song gently singing itself over and over in her ears, only with the words "At last he comes!" unconsciously taking the place of the original phase, she fell asleep.

A cautious step sounded upon the gravel walk outside. A shadow fell upon the sleeping girl, who stirred uneasily as though she felt some dim unconscious state the approach of some evil spirit. The crafty face of the Comte de Miron peered into the apartment, and lighted up with a stealthier smile as he recognized the sleeping and unconscious girl. He paused with a deft motion of the hand he sneedily cut off a lock of her hair and disappeared as mysteriously as he had come.

DEVOTED TO NATURAL HISTORY, EXHIBITING THE LIFE OF COURT BUTTERFLIES, A GLIMPSE AT THE KING BUTTERFLY, AND HOW A SPIDER SPINS HIS WEB.

It was already past one o'clock when La Salle and Tonti approached the Louvre. On the grand staircase they were passed by several personages who hurried on without noticing them. Others followed behind more slowly in a ready stream of humanity flowed up the broad stairs and on into the Grand Salle; gay, laughing faces this most of them, with here and there the grave looks of a priest. Gallants aplenty in rich attire, soldiers fresh from the field with their princes from the women, and a haughty stare and a hand touching the sword-hilt; for the men about them; here and there an officer of the king, distinguished by the court with hair dressed a la hurluburic, cheeks marked by the rouge-pot and the patch, and power of rarest beauty and extravagant cost. Here too came Racine, the tragic muse of his age; Boileau; the Horace of France; La Fontaine, the thinker in words; and Madame de Sevigne, whose virtue and literary talent were to shine as the constellations for men when those of the many beautiful women of this infamous court who for centuries to come be in witchery, wit, and wickedness would be preserved only in the mildewed pages of some long-forgotten chronicle of the day.

It was through such a crowd that La Salle and Tonti made their way and mingled with the throng that filled the Grand Salle. His majesty dined alone in his own apartment at one end, and it was to behi hi him and walk in the royal presence and perchance gain the royal ear or the kingly smile (depending on the sex of the person), when he appeared for a time in public before he retire; to his cabinet to take up affairs of state with his minister, that this gay company had assembled. La Salle bowed right and left, for his own star was in the ascendant and he had many friends. Tonti, too, recognized a few of his acquaintances in the crowd, to whom he nodded or spoke a few words.

JACOB THE FUGITIVE

OUR BIBLE STORY by the "Hallway and Byway" Preacher
(A Vision Between the Lines of God's Inspired Word.)

(Copyright, '99, by J. H. Kellogg.)

Scripture Authority.—"And Esau hated Jacob because of the blessing wherewith his father blessed him, and Esau said in his heart, The days of mourning for my father are at hand; then will I slay my brother Jacob." And these words of Esau, her elder son, were told to Rebekah, and she sent and called Jacob, her younger son, and said unto him, Behold, thy brother Esau, as touching thee, doth comfort himself, purposing to kill thee. Now, therefore, my son, obey my voice, and arise, flee thou to Laban my brother to Haran. . . . And Rebekah said unto Jacob, and he went to Padan-aram unto Laban, son of Bethuel, the Syrian, the brother of Rebekah, Jacob's mother. And Isaac blessed Jacob, and Jacob went out of Beersheba, and went toward Haran. And he lighted upon a certain place, and tarried there all night, because the sun was set; and he took of the stones of that place, and put them for his pillows, and lay down in that place to sleep. And he dreamed, and behold a ladder set up on the earth, and the top of it reached to heaven, and behold the angels of God ascending and descending on it."—Gen. 27:41-42; 28:5, 10-12. Read chapters 27 and 28 entire.

E said he would kill him."

"What," cried Rebekah, a deathly pallor overspreading her face and trembling so that she could scarcely speak, "did Esau say that?"

"I s-a-y," replied the servant, "those were his very words. I was coming along the passage which leads through the grove where Esau's tents are pitched, and, hearing voices, I paused to listen. I caught the words: 'And now he has robbed me of the blessing of the firstborn.' And then I caught the words, 'I will kill him.' Well, ain't you going to do anything about it?" I pushed aside the heavy foliage and cautiously peered through. It was Esau and his wife, Judith. And then Esau asked: 'Do? What can I do, now that father has given the blessing away?' And Judith answered: 'This more than ever and she fairly hissed: 'You fool! Dead men don't get any blessings.' Then I took courage and crept completely your own old that you give him a small place my most trusted servant and what I possess at your service. Now I must see about the quarters for the new English horse that arrives to-morrow. Adieu, ma cherie!" and kissing her in a half-motherly, half-sisterly fashion, she left the room.

DANGER IN HAIR-COMBS.

Accident to Young Woman Shows That Celluloid Is Very Combustible.

Logansport, Ind.—A stenographer in a real estate office had a strange experience with a celluloid comb, which caught fire as she was combing her hair. The young woman was drawing the comb vigorously through her hair, when she felt it becoming hot. Throwing it on the dresser, it suddenly burst into flames and set fire to the dresser scarf. Seizing the comb again to throw it out of the window, the burning end broke off, and, falling to the floor, set fire to a rug, but before the fire could do much damage the young woman had stamped it out with her feet. The supposition is that friction caused the comb to ignite.

AND JOHN GOT HIS PLACE.

His Better-Half Was to the Fore and Brought Things Her Way.

Three hundred motormen, gatemen, etc., were on the line in and near the office of the Interborough Railway company trying to get their old jobs back when a large and aquarrelsome woman led her husband past them all. No one dared resist her, says the New York World, though most of the men had been waiting for hours.

"My husband wants to go back to work," said the woman. "He's a platform man at the ——th street station," she explained. "Been on strike?" asked Mr. Norris, one of Mr. Hedley's assistants.

"Not one minute. I wouldn't hear of such nonsense," said the woman, snapping her eyes.

"Report for duty every day?" asked Mr. Norris.

"Yes," snapped the lady. "John, you reported, didn't you?"

"No-o-o!" admitted the man, timidly.

"What!" cried the wife. "Then you disobeyed orders?"

"Yes," the poor man answered. "The fact is, the strikers wouldn't let me go up the stairs to the station. I tried every day, but they dragged me back."

"Then I'll go myself and drag me," snorted the lady. "I'd just like to see 'em! Well, Mr. Superintendent, does John get back his job or don't he?"

Mr. Norris started as if he had touched the third rail and grinned.

"Er—oh-oh-yes, madam! Oh, certainly! Yes, sure enough! Of course! Oh, yes! Go right back to work as soon as we examine him."

All the waiting men grinned at John, who looked smaller than 30 cents just then.

A Finder's Graft.

"I want you to put in your 'Lost and Found' column an advertisement," said a Wallet containing considerable sum of money and papers. "I don't care about money, return papers," said the man.

"I don't think," suggested the clerk, "you had better add 'No questions asked.'"

"No, but you may say 'No questions answered.' I'm the finder."—Philadelphia Press.

The Reason Why.

Drummond, Wis., Aug. 21st (Special)—While there are many kinds of kidney pills, ranging the praises of Dodd's Kidney Pills the one kind, and other Kidney Cures, there is one kind of Mr. T. T. Wold, a well-known settler here.

"I had such pains in my back that I did not know what to do," says Mr. Wold, "and I learned from an advertisement of Dodd's Kidney Pills, I sent for a box. That cured me. I have not had any pains. My wife also used them and found them beneficial. I will also recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills as a sure cure for backache and other Kidney troubles."

Backache is one of the earliest symptoms of Kidney Disease. Dodd's Kidney Pills cure it promptly and permanently and prevent it developing into Rheumatism, Dropsy, Diabetes or Bright's Disease.

The first thing we know crime and all the evils that follow in its train will be laid to the poor mosquito.—Chicago Chronicle.

continue to suffer rather than submit to examinations which so many physicians practice in order to intelligently treat the disease; and this is the reason why so many physicians fail to cure female disease.

This is also the reason why thousands upon thousands of voluntary testimonials corresponding with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., in her own candid and every detail of their illness, and from her great knowledge, obtained from years of experience in treating female ills, Mrs. Pinkham can advise women more wisely than the local physician.

Read how Mrs. Pinkham helped Mrs. T. C. Willadsen, of Manning, Ia. She writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"For a long time I could have saved my life, and I cannot express my gratitude in words. Before I wrote to you telling you how I felt, I had doctored for over two years with three different doctors and got no relief, besides, but it all failed to do me any good. I had female weakness, displacement of the organs, backache, bearing-down pains, and my monthly periods were very irregular and quite severe. I wrote to you for special advice and received a letter full of instructions just what to do, and as I followed them I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I have been a well woman for the first time in my life for two years. I would have been in my grave long before this had it not been for you. I would have been in my grave long before this had it not been for you I would have been in my grave long before this had it not been for you I would have been in my grave long before this had it not been for you

CHANCES OF PEACE.

Were Greatly Improved by the President's Action.

An Effort is Being Made To Induce Japan to Moderate Her Demands For Indemnity From the Russian Government.

Portsmouth, N. H., Aug. 16.—The crisis in the peace negotiations upon which the eyes of the world is fastened is approaching rapidly and the end of this week or the first of next at the latest should witness the deadlock and the end, if the conference is to go to pieces. Two more of the 12 articles, Nos. 4 and 6, were disposed of Tuesday. Article 4 consists of mutual pledges to observe the integrity of China and the policy of the "open door" for the commerce of all nations, and Article 6 provides for the transfer to the Russian leases to the Liaotung peninsula, Port Arthur, Dalny and the Saghalien Islands.

Article 5, the consideration of which was postponed until later, provides for the cession of the Island of Saghalien.

Portsmouth, N. H., Aug. 17.—The following official statement was issued by Mr. Sato Wednesday evening:

"At the afternoon session of the conference articles 7 and 8 were discussed; article 7 was settled in principle and article 8 accepted unanimously.

Article 7 is the cession of the branch of the Chinese Eastern railroad from Harbin southward and article 8 provides for the retention by Russia of the portion of the line from the Northern Manchuria convention line trans-Siberian road with Vladivostok.

Portsmouth, Aug. 18.—The crisis in the peace conference at Portsmouth is ended and pessimism is again the note. But the darkest hour is just before the dawn and there is still hope. Predictions of a final rupture Friday certainly will not be justified unless Baron Komura figuratively picks up his hat and announces that it is useless to proceed further. Mr. Witte at least will not be precipitate. At 5 o'clock session after article 11 (the limitation of Russia's sea power in the far east) and article 12 (fishing rights on the Russian littoral) are disposed of he will favor an adjournment until Monday to hear the last word from St. Petersburg.

The pessimism is based upon the fact that no progress was made Thursday. The exchange of views on the morning session on article 9 (remuneration for the "cost of the war") showed at once that the plenipotentiaries were as far apart as the poles.

Portsmouth, N. H., Aug. 19.—Black pessimism reigns at Portsmouth. The prevailing view is that the fate of the peace conference is already sealed, that it has ended in failure and that all that now remains is for the plenipotentiaries to meet on Tuesday, to which day they adjourned Friday afternoon upon completing the seratim consideration of the Japanese terms, sign the final protocol and bid each other farewell.

But there is still room for hope of a compromise. Neither President Roosevelt nor the powers will see the chance of peace shipwrecked without a final effort and that pressure is being exerted especially at Tokio to induce Japan to moderate her terms is beyond question.

But the chances are recognized to be slim. So far as the Russian plenipotentiaries are concerned there never was a chance for their yielding both indemnity and Sakhalien. The cession of Sakhalien without indemnity was, according to the best inside information, the extreme limit to which Mr. Witte would ever consent to go and the emperor has not yet given the word even to concede that.

Portsmouth, N. H., Aug. 21.—The chances of peace have undoubtedly been improved by President Roosevelt's action in stepping into the breach in a last heroic endeavor to induce the warring countries to compromise their "irreconcilable differences," but the result is still in suspense.

The ultimate decision of the issue has in fact to rest on the judgment of the plenipotentiaries to their principals from Portsmouth to St. Petersburg, and perhaps in a lesser extent Tokio. Although there are collateral evidences that pressure both by President Roosevelt and neutral powers, including Japan's ally, Great Britain, whose minister, Sir Claude MacDonald, according to advices received by the Associated Press conferred Sunday afternoon with Mr. Katsura, the Japanese premier, is still being exerted to induce Japan to moderate her demand there is also reason to believe that President Roosevelt was able at his interview with Baron Hayashi to practically compromise upon the latter's action, Mr. Witte, Japan's irreducible minimum—what she would yield but the point beyond which she would not go.

Whether an actual basis of compromise was proposed by the president can not be stated definitely.

BEING CONTROLLED.

For Several Days Number of New Cases of Fever Showed a Decline.

New Orleans, Aug. 21.—Following is the official report up to 6 p. m. Sunday: New cases, 45; total cases to date, 1,385; deaths, 4; total deaths to date, 196; new foci, 11; total foci to date, 306; cases under treatment, 381.

New Orleans, Aug. 21.—No better evidence of the fact that the vitalization of mosquito forer is not only being controlled here but that there is a chance for its eradication can be found than in the daily reports of cases and deaths. For several days now the number of new cases has shown a decline, while the number of deaths have been remarkably lower, considering the number of cases reported a week ago. The death list indicates that practically every case that develops is not being reported and that means that the modern method of treatment to prevent spread is being applied. When that condition is assured the end of vitalization is in sight and it looks as if that condition is approaching.

VICEROY OF INDIA.

Lord Curzon Resigns and the Earl of Minto Succeeds Him.

London, Aug. 21.—The resignation of Lord Curzon, viceroy and governor of India and the appointment of the Earl of Minto as his successor, was announced at the India office.

According to the correspondence which is issued in the form of a white book it appears that Lord Curzon's resignation was tendered to the office on August 12. The correspondence shows a decidedly bitter feeling between Lord Curzon, the India office and Lord Kitchener, commander-in-chief of the forces in India, over the new plan of army reorganization in India. Lord Curzon's dissatisfaction came to a head with the refusal of the council, which, it is said, was led by Admiral Barrow, on Lord Curzon's recommendation, military supply member of the council.

THE DOUMA PROJECT.

The Papers of St. Petersburg Comment on tha New Schema.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 21.—The Novoe Vremya and the Russky Slovo unreservedly praise the douma project. The other Petersburg papers, however, fail to show much enthusiasm. While half-heartedly admitting that the project marks an improvement, these latter papers criticise the limitation powers of the douma and ask for an extension of the freedom of the press, freedom of meeting and political amnesty.

The Novoe Vremya declares the wall which that for centuries separated the nation from the sovereign has fallen and that the new reform opens the way for the development of national individuality and genius which is necessary for the evolution of a great people.

The Russky Slovo says that the new douma will bring Russia into line with the western nations.

ARE YOUR KIDNEYS WEAK?

Thousands of Men and Women Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It.

To Prove What the Great Kidney Remedy, Swamp-Root, Will Do for YOU, Every Reader of This Paper May Have a Sample Bottle Sent Absolutely Free by Mail.

It used to be considered that only urinary and bladder troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all diseases have their beginning in the disorder of these most important organs.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, because as soon as your kidneys begin to get better they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.

Didn't Know I Had Kidney Trouble

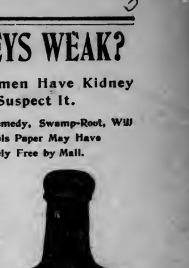
I had tried so many remedies without their having benefited me that I was almost discouraged but in a few days after taking your wonderful Swamp-Root I began to feel better.

I was out of health and run down generally; had no appetite, was dizzy and suffered with headache most of the time. I did not know that my kidneys were the cause of my trouble, but somehow felt they might be, and I began taking Swamp-Root, as above stated. There is such a pleasant taste to Swamp-Root, and it is such a true friend and draws disease out of the system. It has cured me in making me stronger and better in every way, and I cheerfully recommend it.

Mrs. A. L. WALKER, Rte. 2, Box 22, Linden St., Atlanta, Ga.

Weak and unhealthy kidneys are responsible for many kinds of diseases, and if permitted to continue many suffering and fatal results often follow. Kidney trouble irritates the nerves, makes you dizzy, restless, sleepless and irritable. Makes you pass water often during the day and obliges you to get up many times during the night. The unhealthy kidneys cause rheumatism, gravel, catarrh of the bladder, pain or dull ache in the back, joints and muscles; make your head ache and back ache, cause indigestion, stomach and liver trouble, you get a sallow, yellow complexion, make you feel as though you had a dozen trouble; you may have plenty of ambition, but no strength; get weak and waste away.

The cure for these troubles is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the world-famous kidney remedy. In taking Swamp-Root you adopt a natural help to Nature, for Swamp-Root is the most perfect healer and gentle aid to the kidneys that is known to medical science.



(Swamp-Root is pleasant to take.)

How to Find Out

If there is any doubt in your mind as to your condition, take from your urine on rising about four ounces, place it in a glass or bottle and let it stand twenty-four hours. If on examination it is milky or cloudy, if there is a brick-dust settling, or if small particles float about in it, your kidneys are in need of immediate attention.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.—To be successful in Swamp-Root is promptly curing even the most distressing cases, that is given its wonderful merits you may have a sample bottle sent a book of valuable information, both sent absolutely free by mail. The book contains many of the thousands of testimonials received from sufferers cured from time and women cured. The value and success of Swamp-Root is so well known that our readers are advised to write for a sample bottle.

In writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure to say that you read this generous offer in this paper.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and you can purchase the regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles at the drug stores everywhere. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

WHAT DID THE CATCHER SAY?

Something the "Fans" Would Like to Know, But Will Never Learn.

It was the last half of the ninth.

The pitcher had gone up in the air, and the bases were full as three goats, relatives the Newark News.

Two outs and two in favor of the team in the field. A single would tie the score. A two-bagger would win the game.

Two men had lied out, and the man at bat had two strikes against him.

It was a crucial moment.

And, as we say, the pitcher was rattled.

He had given two balls, and the man at bat had two strikes against him.

The fans were wild with joy.

And, as we say, the pitcher was rattled.

He had given two balls, and the man at bat had two strikes against him.

His right hand.

He removed his wire mask and stepped toward the pitcher, who advanced to meet him.

With mouth close to the pitcher's ear the catcher whispered something. What it was no one heard but the pitcher, who returned to the box.

The ball shot free across the plate.

"Strike three!" cried the umpire. The pitcher had saved the day.

Now, then, the thing we want to know is this: What did the catcher say to the pitcher?

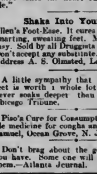
Was Fast Drifting Into the Fatal Stages of Kidney Sickness.



Dr. Melvin M. Page, Page Optical Co., Erie, Pa., writes: "Taking too many blood drinks in New York in 1898 sent me home with a terrible attack of kidney trouble. I had such severe backache, sharp pain in the back, headaches and attacks of dizziness. My eyes gave out, and with the backache and sleeplessness of the disease upon me I wasted from 194 to 122 pounds. At the time I started using Doan's Kidney Pills an abscess was forming on my right kidney. The trouble was quickly checked, however, and the treatment cured me, so that I have been well since 1898 and weigh 168 pounds."

Recommend PARACAMPH as a Most Reliable First Aid to the Injured.

Many people in this city are injured daily, and oftentimes serious results follow simply because the injury was not properly cared for in the beginning. It is not always possible to secure a physician at a moment's notice. Many deaths are caused by negligence and delay. Blood-poisoning often results from bad cuts, gun shot wounds, etc., because the wound is not properly treated promptly. Paracamph is a reliable and safe home remedy which every family should keep in their homes every day; every factory, manufacturing plant and large institution should keep Paracamph near at hand. It is recommended by authorities to be a most reliable, relieving, soothing and healing agent. It not only stops pain quickly, but it heals wounds without leaving ugly scars and absolutely prevents blood-poisoning.

Paracamph is truly a home remedy and every bottle is guaranteed to be pure, safe, clean, and to do exactly what is claimed for it. If you do not keep Paracamph in your home, get a bottle today. It is just as necessary in your home as good soap and water.

You will find it excellent for quickly relieving Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sore, Tired Feet, Skin Troubles, Catarrh, or any form of Swelling or Inflammation.

Sold only in 25c, 50c and $1.00 bottles by all good druggists.—The Paracamph Company, Louisville, Ky., U. S. A.
